

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Procedure and system for the production of hydrogen from methane or other gaseous hydrocarbon, in which the methane is decomposed at high temperature in the presence of a catalyst supplying hydrogen and carbon. The carbon which would pollute the catalyst is eliminated by means of a catalyst regeneration phase with steam, which generates a reaction gas that can be re-used as a source of energy (Fig. 1).